Title:
Mixed Modes of Survey Data Collection and Measurement Error

Abstract:
This seminar is about a UK mixed mode experiment used to study measurement error between face-to-face, telephone and internet modes of survey administration. It covers background about the project, including the theoretical model, provides highlights of both quantitative and cognitive interview findings and ends with a discussion of factors involved in assessing mixed mode measurement error.